

Keerti Kahasrabudhe, DDS, AAACD

I grew up in India and earned a BDS degree. I graduated with a MSD from University of WA School of Dentistry in 1999. I have been practicing restorative dentistry in Redmond, WA since then.

I was a senior research fellow through NIDR at University of Wa while doing my Oral medicine residency from 1996 through 1999. My love for academia and mentorship continued in the form of being an adjunct faculty at UW SOD for 5 years and later being actively involved in mentorship through Spear education and leadership through Spear study club. My love for esthetics grew under the tutelage of an excellent faculty through the UCLA esthetic continuum.

I earned my my FAGD in 2017 and my AAACD in 2019. Of all my journeys in life, the journey towards achieving my AAACD was hands down the most profound yet, in that it challenged me to not only develop a better esthetic eye but to also be a more disciplined and focused clinician.
